AMERICAN LEAGUE PARK, NEW YORK, April 14.-The baseball season is under way in Manhattan. Twenty thousand shouting, stamping walkovers. fans helped the eighteen uniformed, shivering young men from New York and Beantown, representing the New York Americans and the champion Boston team, start the first game of the year this afternoon, and kept up the shouting and stamping all through the better part of the two hours

Of course there was a band to contribute to the gayety of the occasion, ulthough no one paid any attention to the music. Then, too, there were inting, thousands of the little and big ones, and miles and of variegated cloth.

Spring hats of straw and winter jackpts and wraps were side by side with the young man who thought summer tame with the first ball game and put in his overcoat for the price of a grandgrand ticket.

There were some new faces on Griffith's team, but the crowd made friends at once, as New York crowds do, and newcomers and old standbys got a hand with or without provocation.

The happy Mr. Chesbro, he of the cotton top and Harvard sweater, was down to do the slab work for the Highlanders, putting them over to Mr. Mc-Guire. For the double champions Jesse Tannehill, once Highlander himself, faced his old team-mates, backed up by the wonderful Criger.

The grounds showed wonderful improvement. "Wee Willie" Keeler's territory has been extended and raised, until that young man is now clearly visible to the naked eye from all parts of the stands.

After the inspection of the grounds the band got to work again, then came the preliminary work, with music accompaniment, and then—well, then came the game itself.

Later the Stewards issued an rder warning the jockey off Newmarket Heath.

that Reiff's riding days in England were that Reiff's riding days in England were at an end.

The race which Reiff was accused of having lost was for the New Barns Plate. Reiff then rode Mr. Whitney's horse De Lacy and finished second to Richard Croker's Minnie Dee, ridden by the ruled-off jockey's younger brother, 'Johnnie' Reiff. Minnie Dee won by a head after what was considered a very slovenly ride by Lester Reiff.

This ruling by the English Jockey Club will likely have the effect of inducing the Jockey Club here to restore Reiff to good standing.

Members of eTam in Accident The Brooklyn team had gone over to Manhattan to escort the Glants to Washington Park. The procession wind consisted of a brass band in a big wagon drawn by four horses, and five automobiles in which the players and the officials were distributed, paraded around Park Row and lower Broadway. Then they came across the bridges

Then they came across the bridge. Near the Brookly tower a team smashed in one of the automobiles and upset the vehicle. No one was badly injured and the ball players at once proceeded to the Brooklyn grounds.

While the players were getting ready Shannon's Twenty-third Regiment Band marched in on the diamond playing a popular march. They were followed by the Elks of Brooklyn. When they came to the grand stand they all lined up, with President Charley Ebbets at their head. They grabbed a long rope and pulled it, which released the American flag from the stop of the grand stand, while the band played the "Star Spangled Banner." Thousands of rooters arose, raised, their hats and stood until the band had finished.

After the teams lined up the band struck up a march and the teams started off abreast in their march to the grand stand, while the rooters cheered themselves hoarse. After the teams had bractised for ifteen minutes each the bell rang and the game started, with about 20,000 persons present.

After the players of both teams had received instructions from Umpire Emsle, Harry Pulliam, President of the National League, threw out a new ball and the game started with the Giants first at the bat.

TORPEDO-BOAT DESTROYER IS SUNK IN THIS ACTION.

Russian Cruiser Bayan Is Badly Hammered by Five Japanese Ships, but She Is Saved by Two Sister Vessels-Most Determined Bombardment of Port Arthur Is on To-Day.

ST_PETERSBURG, April 14.—Fresh disasters to the Russian cause are reported to-day officially by Rear Admiral Prince Ouktomsky, who has taken provisional command of the fleet at Port Arthur since the destruction of the Petropavlovsk and the death of Admiral Makaroff.

The torpedo-boat destroyer Bezstrashni reconnoitring beyond the protection of the shore guns got separated from the rest of the scout boats and was attacked by several Japanese destroyers. There was a brisk fight but the Beztrashni was literally smothered. The Japanese poured in deadly fire from all sides and although the Russians fought to the last ditch the Beztrashni was sunk.

Only five of the crew were saved. The rest went down to death with the destroyer.

POBIEDA. TOO, NEARLY BLOWN UP.

This disaster was followed by another of even greater magnitude, it is feared, although but little information on it is obtainable now. The big battle-ship Pobieda left Port Arthur with other heavy vessels of the fleet to attack the Japanese fleet. Reinforced by some twenty vessels of war, the Japanese fleet welcomed the chance to fight. The Pobieda had wandered beyond the protection of the shore guns and was manoeuvring when the Japanese reinforce ments came along. She started back with the rest of the fleet. Near the mouth of the harbor she struck a mine amidships on the starboard side. The extent of the damage is not known, but it is believed to have been

The Pobieda was able to regain port by herself. Admiral Ouktomsky reports that no one aboard her was killed or wounded.

The latest reports from Port Arthur also have the Bayan badly disabled. She was cut off after the action in which Admiral Makaroff lost his life and was attacked by five Japanese vessels. The Askold and another cruiser helped her back into port, but she is believed to be permanently disabled.

The exact character of the injuries to the Pobieda are not obtainable this hour.
